The index extended their gains for the third consecutive session amid broader positive market sentiment with TRENT emerging as the top gainer. IT major stocks tumbled and dominated the top 5 losers list after US IT stocks had fallen overnight triggered by the rise of AI and the threat it poses to business models of many such companies.
- NIFTY50 depicted a bullish candlestick with shadows on both ends as the index sits above 20,50,100,200-day EMAs as well as the middle Bollinger Band. The MACD histogram has expanded from 8.97 to 44.16 as the MACD line maintains a bullish crossover and is trading well above the Signal line. RSI rose to 54.61 and moving superior to the reference line. Collectively, the momentum indicators signal that the bullish momentum is on the rise with strengthening positive bias.
